This workshop was designed specifically for elected Aboriginal political leaders and focuses on the vital role that ethics play in their daily lives and the importance of ethical leadership in an Aboriginal setting. The workshop covers the following topics: rights, responsibilities and ethics; how they interact; how each influences the way Aboriginal elected leaders carry out their day to day jobs; common situations faced in elected positions where ethical issues are at stake; critical questions leaders must ask when wanting to make an ethical decision; and the essentials for creating an ethical work environment.

Topics to be covered:

- What is meant when discussing ethics, values, morals and ethical behaviour in relation to governments, and what unique ethical situations are faced by elected officials?
- Ways of regulating ethical behaviour and the importance of a Code of Ethics.
- A focus on ethics in Aboriginal settings and importance of strong leadership in creating an ethical Nation.
- What are the differences between right and responsibilities, and the significance to Aboriginal leaders of making decisions using rights as the measure?
- A framework for making ethical decisions.
- Common reoccurring ethical dilemmas that elected officials face on a regular basis.
